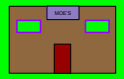
gaime

Map of wurld



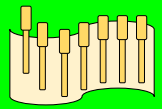
Moe's tavern

Pawn shop

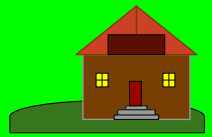
Map of wurld

MacPhisto's castle

Wind mill



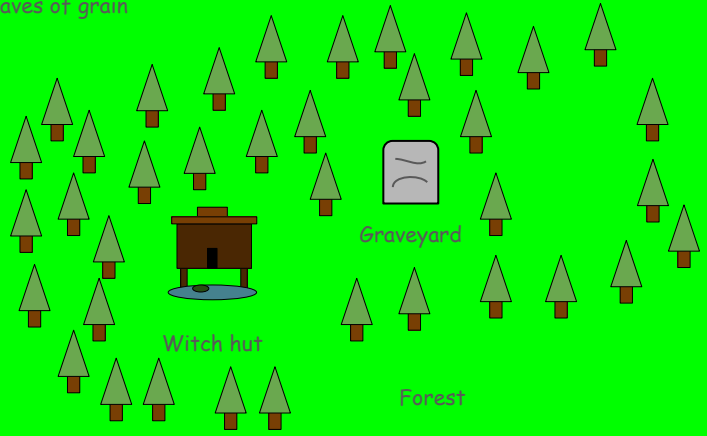
Amber waves of grain



Homestead

Stairway to heaven

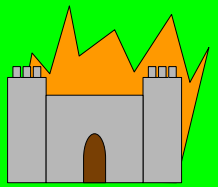
Robert Smith's house



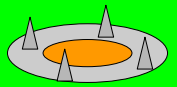
Graveyard

Witch hut

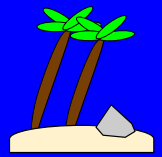
Forest



Skee Bop City

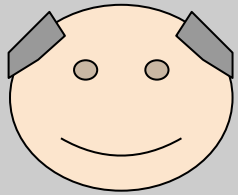


Hell hole

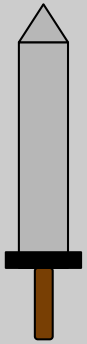


Vacation island

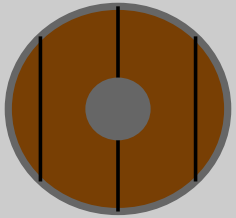
Pawn shop



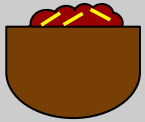
Owned by Dennis



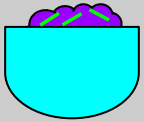
Long sword - $20



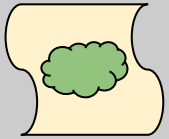
Circle shield - $25



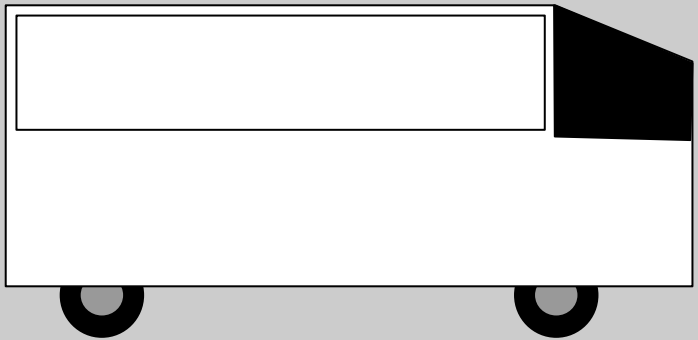
Chili bowl - $5



super Chili bowl - $30



cropdust - $20



Minivan!!! - $1000

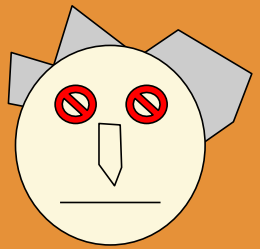
disintegration armor - $30

Mystery key - $15

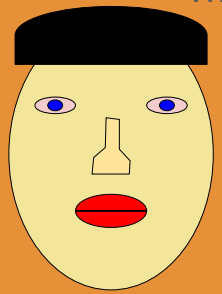
Moe's tavern

Owned by Moe

people



Wise man - $100

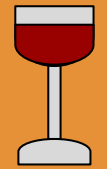


Sebastian - $150

Bernard Sumner - $200

booze

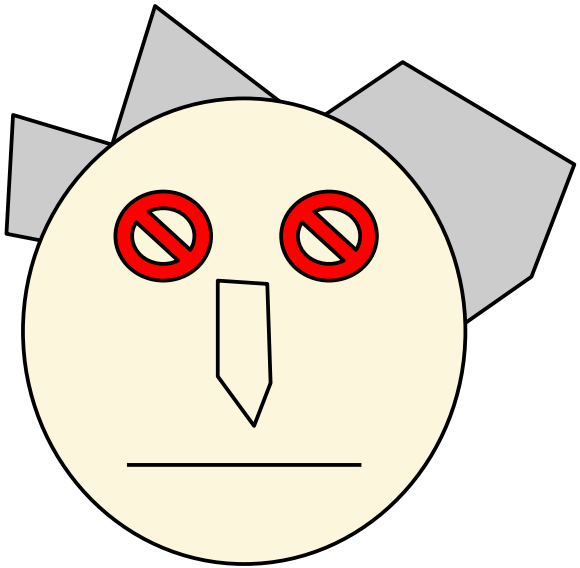
Beer can - $5



Wine glass - $10

shot of Robert Smith's tears - $15

Wise Man



Race: ???

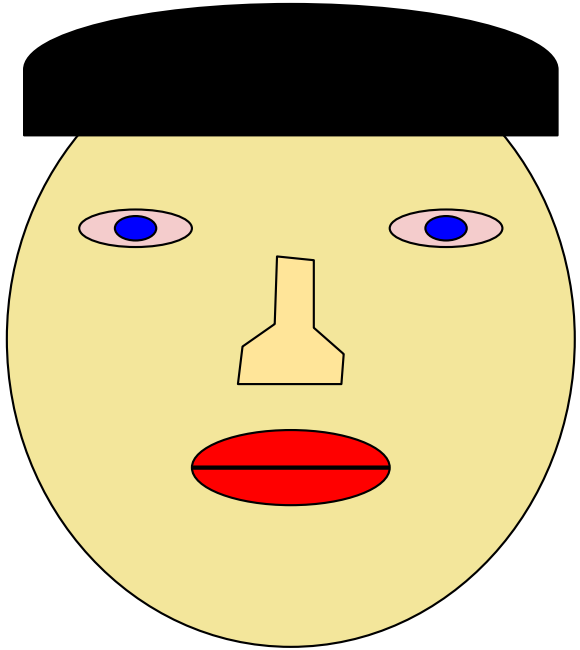
Class: ???

Alignment: ???

Background

Everybody in Moe's just know this guy as Wise Man. Nobody knows who he is or what makes him wise, but he's there. He is also probably blind or otherwise disabled. You see him carrying a large walking stick. He is a living and breathing mystery. Well, we really don't know if he does either of those things. Wise Man is ready to serve you, provided that you pay him up front first.

Sebastian



Race: Human

Class: Rogue

Alignment: True Neutral

Background

People often pity Sebastian because of his scrawny build and zero romantic appeal. They forget that Sebastian is unassuming and stealthy, so he is not totally useless. He is a bit robotic and mechanical in nature, and is a pretty dull person in general. Sebastian will accompany you if you give him $150 dollars so that he can buy more booze when all is said and done.

Bernard Sumner

Race: Human

Class: Fighter

Alignment: Chaotic Good

Background

Bernard doesn't really know why he is here. He's already had too much vodka to remember, and he's also too drunk to need justification to accompany you on your travels, so long as you pay up. Growing up in 1970s Manchester naturally left him tough. Bernard played guitar in Joy Division and is currently serving as vocalist in New Order. Somewhere in there he learned how to use a sword. He doesn't really want to leave the tavern, but he's got nothing better to do than follow a drunk like you.

MACPHISTO

Race: Human? Demon?

Class: Enemy

Alignment: Lawful Evil

Background

Once the heroic councillor of King McCartney, Bono was corrupted by Hell and transformed into the gilded and decadent MacPhisto. Seizing the kingdom, he rules tyrannically and with no heart for his subjects. He resides in his palace, waiting for someone to try to stop him as the world burns. MacPhisto is very powerful, capable of using the hellish magic of the Devil to decimate foes. He will not be easy to defeat.